Biography

Jacalyn Shelley is an Episcopalian layperson based in New Jersey who has significant service in the Church as a Vestry member, Warden and Diocesan Convention deputy.

Collection Scope and Content Note

The papers contain Jacalyn Shelley's thesis for Master of Arts in History on the subject of the ordination of women in the Episcopal Church. Her preliminary research, in the form of oral history transcripts of her interviews with seven Episcopal Women priests from the Diocese of New Jersey, is also included. Some transcript folders contain correspondence or annotations to the transcripts. Release forms are attached to the transcripts. Please note the one form which requests that the individual not be named in any publication. These papers provide insight into the experience of the first generation of women priests in Diocese of New Jersey.

Processing

When the Burke Library acquired the papers, any folded materials were flattened and staples and metal clips were removed. All materials were placed in acid-free folders and boxes.
