Biography

Wilbert Webster White (WWW) was born to Martha Campbell White and John May White on January 16, 1863 in Nankin, Ohio. Wilbert's younger siblings were Elizabeth Belle (born 1864) who married Presbyterian minister Charles Compton; Leila Ada (1866) who married John Mott, International YMCA leader and organizer of the World Missionary Conference in 1910; Anna May (1868) who married William Stewart and served with him as a missionary in the Far East; John Campbell (1870) who married Kate Pollock and was also involved in the YMCA and the missionary movement; and David George (1872) who married Mary Shaw and worked with his brothers for some time.

WWW earned his A.B. in 1881 and A.M. degree in 1883 from Wooster College. In 1885, he graduated from Xenia Theological Seminary. That year, he married Ella Jane Henderson. Their children were Helen Henderson, Wilbert Wallace, Robert Campbell and Donald Murray. Robert died young and Wilbert Junior died in World War One.

White left the pastorate after only sixteen months. His subsequent graduate work at Yale, where he was awarded a Ph.D. in 1891, prepared him to return to Xenia Theological Seminary as a professor. He was awarded honorary D.D degrees from Muskingum College in 1896 and New York University in 1913. He left Xenia Seminary in 1894 to become Associate Director of the Moody Bible Institute in Chicago. Two years later, he was invited by the YMCA to work with college students in Calcutta. He spent time with missionaries there and, as at Yale, saw a great need for Bible education. On the way home in 1898, White was asked to conduct Bible studies in Britain. This work lasted for two years.

White identified his “Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse,” the individuals who had most influenced him. The first was Lord Overtoun, a Scot, who supported White in Britain. The second was Andrew Murray, whose book on prayer deeply influenced White in 1893. The third was Dwight Moody. The fourth was William Rainey Harper, the founder of the University of Chicago. White met Harper in 1883 while studying Hebrew in summer school. He continued the acquaintance during his graduate work at Yale, where Harper was on the faculty. At Yale, White became concerned with method, although all his previous training had been traditional.

In August 1900, White returned from Britain to found Bible Teacher’s College in Montclair, NJ, which opened on January 8, 1901. Before the next school year, President White moved that institution to New York City, following a belief that theological education should be cosmopolitan. The school changed its name to Bible Teachers’ Training School. After using various churches’ facilities, the School took up residence at 541 Lexington Ave in 1904. From 1905 to 1907, the School was allied with Sol Dickey and the Winona Lake Indiana movement; during that period, it was called The Winona Bible School. After gaining approval to grant graduate degrees in 1920, the School’s name became Biblical Seminary in New York in 1921. BSNY moved to 235 East 49th Street in 1927.

The foundation of White’s educational policy was systematic Bible study in students’ native languages. He stressed knowledge of the Bible rather than knowledge about the Bible. He also emphasized home missions, as exemplified by the Italian department, and community service. White also offered study through the School’s publications: pamphlets, books, correspondence courses, and guest lectures and sermons. Beginning in 1924, White conducted intensive Bible studies for Christian leaders at Columbiana, near Silver Bay, New York, an extension school of BSNY.

Much of White’s work was directed at establishing and expanding his school. The depression years were particularly difficult for the seminary. In October 1938, Wilbert was advised by his physician to take an extended rest. His brother, John Campbell White, became acting president of the seminary. Lacking support for his plan for the future of the school, Wilbert resigned his presidency in April 1939 and his place on the Board of Trustees in July of that year.

Wilbert spent most of his last four years at Silver Bay in personal Bible study, focusing especially on the Minor Prophets and Revelation. He died on August 2, 1944 at age 81.

Collection Scope and Content Note

The Wilbert Webster White Papers contain his personal papers from 1878-1945, which primarily focus on Bible Study and The Biblical Seminary in New York. These papers include White’s own Bible study and his suggestions to direct others’ studies, essays on biblical topics, sermons, speeches, memoirs and correspondence. Relatively few documents relate to his personal or family life with the exception of those concerning the death of his son Wilbert Junior in the First World War.

Notes and the many charts White used to discern the structure of the books of the Bible are in the Bible Study series, while more developed studies in the form of essays were scattered and have been gathered in the Literary Productions series. Much of the correspondence, including that to his family, is on the subject of Bible study.

Documents related to BSNY are scattered throughout the collection, primarily in correspondence, which includes correspondence with speakers, potential faculty, the board of trustees, and others. Further primary research material on this subject may be found in the BSNY Records, also held by The Burke Library Archives.

The collection is organized into 6 series:

- Series 1: Biography, 1910 - 1944 (1 Box, 0.25 lin. ft.)
This series contains materials relating to White's family, himself and his relationship to the seminary which he founded. The series also includes two folders of minutes collected by White.
- Series 2: Correspondence, 1878 - 1944 (2 Boxes, 1.0 lin. ft)

Drafts of correspondence to Mahatma Gandhi are to be found here and also correspondence related to the death of Lt. Wilbert White Jr. in the First World War. The arrangement is alphabetical by correspondent. Correspondence with individuals is followed by a sequence of student's testimonials. Many of these students report on their work in the mission field.

This series is arranged alphabetically and includes memorabilia collected by White or materials that others collected about him, including materials related to the death of his son in the First World War. This series concludes with two folders containing a special booklist compiled by White and a map of London indicating where Bible study was held by him in England.
- Series 6: Collected Publications, 1881 - 1945, (4 Boxes, 2 lin. ft)

The series is arranged alphabetically by type of printed material: articles, booklets, books, charts, periodicals, sermons, and speeches. The series ends with clippings, both on White and more general.

Processing

Metal clips and staples were removed from materials and folded items were flattened. Materials were placed in acid-free folders and boxes. Acidic items were separated from one another by interleaving with acid-free paper as needed.

Asbury Theological Seminary Processing Notes, 1987

White's filing methods seem to have been somewhat eclectic. Charles Eberhardt reorganized some portion of these in the years following White's death. In subsequent years, there appears to have been a further shifting of papers. The collection originally arrived at Asbury with some parts just as White put them together, but with other sections quite disorganized or doubtful. Materials put together by White have usually been kept together. White's pencil markings for his filing system have been retained and folders labeled accordingly.

White's papers relating specifically to Columbiana or to the Biblical Seminary were added to the Archival collections by those names.

Among materials where no order could be discerned, within a single series, several structures were employed, depending on the type of materials and identifying markings. Some could be arranged only by date, title or topic.
